

Riflessioni sull'educazione continua in medicina

F.P. Schena

In brief

Considerations on the continuing medical education

How to prepare questionnaires for continuing medical education. How to prepare meetings and talks. How to present slides at meetings. These three topics are very important for the success of the continuing medical education. Chairmen and speakers involved in the education of young physicians or in the communication of new information on life sciences should be well acquainted with the points listed above.